

Jonathan Paul - spatial vision

Jonathan Paul of One Way Kitchens has won a host of 'Kitchen Industry' design awards that have recognised his talent.

Simply stepping into his Southport showroom is enough to tell you he has vision. In fact, it's his ability to visualise, which gives him a distinct advantage. It means that from the very outset of any project, he is able to accurately assess which ideas or concepts will succeed and which could flounder. His unique sense of spatial awareness allows him to fully focus his attention, to maximise the potential for the living space. Liquidity of thought allows him to see beyond the existing restrictions of walls and other barriers and if necessary, to specify alteration or removal within his plans.

for One Way Kitchens

Driven by a desire to create perfect 'living design', Jonathan specialises in remodelling and integrating rooms, instigating and overseeing structural change whenever it is required. He brings all elements together, achieving a harmony in function and form, which often belies belief.

Jonathan has the ability, to make it all look and seem easy. But, make no mistake - to achieve his results, nothing has been left to chance. Everything is finely tuned to exacting, measurable standards. Very often this will even include organizing audiovisual and lighting interconnectivity creating amazing atmospheric effects.

To guarantee that every project flows smoothly, Jonathan is supported by an interior designer plus other key design and coordination personnel who work closely with his installation and fitting teams, making sure that the project programme is as synchronized as the design itself.
